

Song: "Let Evening Come"

Album: Reckonings (2023 Release by Eric Kilburn)

Let evening come, let the nightbirds call
Let the sun slip off, let shadows fall
Let yourself lie down, fall away in dreamless sleep
Set aside the lists and the promises to keep
And though there is so much to do
Let the arms of evening wrap themselves in you

Let evening come, let the moon rise through the trees
Let the stars smile on you as they dance in galaxies
May you find a place where cares just melt away
And return to you when you awaken in another day
And though you might not quite believe
Grace will come to those who can receive

Let evening come, find your place of rest
Like animals and birds find the safety of a nest
Unbind the snares of all you've left undone
Let evening come
Let evening come